The National Soldiers Home, with its full of reminicence and of tales of valor the Parthenon-shaped County Court House, the Cooper Academy, the Orphan asylina, the Lonatic Asylina and the Market House are all public institutions well worth seeing, and of the private residences, roare extremely handsome and strial Dayton owes its importance, however, ver largely to its numerous and varied many factures, which give employment to many intelligent mechanics. One of these large intelligent mechanics. One of these large establishments is the Bockeye Brass and Iron Works, which is well known for the From Works, which is well known for the excellence of its products. Among its em-ployees is John R. Rea, a patternmaker whose home is at No. 127 Jones street Mr. Rea speaks thus of his long standing trouble with neuralgia:

"That Athlopheros is the medicine for neuralgia and rheumatism. It rid me of my pain so quickly that I could sorrely realize that it was gone. But it was and I must give Athlophoros the credit of doing what is claimed for it. I was an extreme sufferer for four years from neuralgia, the disease, of course, Jeing worse at some times than at others. It was no headache, but the kind of neuralgia that confined me to my house and many to my bed. Last fall I had a very attack, which lasted about six weeks. I was entirely helpless and was not able to get out of the house at all. I did everything and used every remedy. I had used before, but nothing gave me any relief. "Hearing of Athlophores, and of what a wonderful cure it had made in the case of Mr. Rockfield's daughter, I bought a bottle of it. I took four or five doses the first day and night and immediately began to improve. That night I had good ale something which I have not had for no nights previous. When I awake the next morning my neuralgia was gone. From that day to this I have not had it and I maye not spent a penny for medicin after the first day and night " "Yes; I kept on using it until the best-tle was empty for fear that I had not taken enough to drive the disease away entirely. Then I bought another bottle to have a band in case I should need it. I did n use it, however, but my wife did. She ha been subject to sharp rheumatic pains i ber shoulder, but she has never had any return of them since she used the Atlal

"The Athlophores cured you and yo wife at a cost of only two dollars?"

"Yes; but it was not a question of de lars, but of how to get rid of the terri sufferings and be able to attend to work, from which I had been detained long. I would have given a hundred lars to any one who would have cured as effectually as Athlophoros did for a d lar. It is cheap at any price, for it doesn't is claimed for it—cures rheumatism a neuralgia. I have not lost a day's wor since I used it."
